CARNEGIE LIBRARY AT WASHINGTON OPEN

President Roosevelt Speaks at Dedication of Beautiful Marble Edifice.

CARNEGIE ALSO PARTICIPATES.

Says He Will Grant Nearly All of Eight Hundred Applications for Library Buildings Received in Recent Months.

Washington, Jan. 7 .- Washington's new public library, a handsome white-marble structure, located on Mount Vernon Square, donated to the national capital by Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated this afternoon with Carnegie, was dedicated this afternoon with impressive ceremonies.

Fresident Roosevelt and members of his Cabinet, and men in all walks of civil and political life were participants and witnesses to the ceremonies of dedication.

Mr. Carnegie, who made the beautiful structure possible, by contributing $50,000 for its construction, was present, and delivered the principal address of the dedication ceremony.

livered the principal address of the dedication ceremony.

The auditorium of the library was crowded and both the President and Mr. Carnegie were accorded a hearty reception.

Prior to the formal egremonies the Marine Band rendered a musical programme. At the conclusion of the formal exercises the library was thrown open to the public.

After President McFarland of the Board of District Commissioners had called the assemblage to order, he introduced President Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT ON SELE-TRAINING.

of District Commissioners had called the assemblage to order, he introduced President Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT ON SELF-TRAINING.

The President said he counted himself fortunate in attending the library ceremonies, in some respects as representing the people of the United States, to express his grateful appreciation of the wisdom of Mr. Carnegle in presenting a magnificent free library to Washington. He believed that a man ought to consider himself as thrice blessed who might use his wealth for the benefit of the whole people.

The common schools system, of course, lies at the foundation of education, but it was only the foundation. The enormous majority of American citizens of necessity must educate themselves. Such a library as that donated by Mr. Carnegle would be helpful, but it presented a way by following which the people might educate themselves. No philanthropic work was really valuable except such as enabled the individual to help himself.

Every man needed help—needed the chance to show the stuff that was in him. The free library afforded men the opportunity to equalize opportunities and left it to each one to show whether he would take advantage of those that were offered to him. The opportunity offered by this free library was equally far from the two prime vices of human nature—hardness of heart and softness of head.

He said that he had attended the exercises because he felt that to secure self-training was of such importance that the President of the United States could not be present on an occasion of greater moment.

He concluded with an expression of thanks to Mr. Carnegie for his splendid gift to the people of the national capital.

ROOSEVELT, THE AUTHOR.

Mr. Carnegie next was introduced. He was given an ovstion by the great audience. He said in part:

was given an ovation by the great audience. He said in part:

The free ilbrary, maintained by all the people, for all the people, knows neither rank nor birth wittin its walls. Even he who honors us to-day by his august presence, the honor of the highest position upon earth, the elected of the majority of the English-speaking race, a position compared with which all inher ted positions sink into insignificance within these wals, has no privileges which are not the right of his poorest and humblest fellow-citizen. Free librares maintained by the people are cradles of democracy, and their spread can never fail to extend and strengthen the democratic idea, equality of the citizen, the royalty of man, They are emphatically fruits of the true American ideal.

But while even the President thust stands on the common level as the President, we cannot fail to remember that in the free library the man has a place, denied to the official, as a prince in the republic of letters, for in the ranks of those who constitute the chief glory of the nation, its authors, this was won long since by Theodore Roosevelt, the author.

Before he was President, he had, Caesar like, not only caused his fellows to mark him and write his speeches in their books, but had made books for himself. I doubt not that of the books taken from this library his will rank high in the list. When the president is the property of President and author, positions unsurpassed in their several sphores, rare and wonderful in combination.

IN THE LIBRARY BUSINESS.

IN THE LIBRARY BUSINESS. IN THE LIBRARY BUSINESS.

Mr. Carnegie said that he had given, chiefly within the last two years, 730 library buildings. During the month of July last 276 applications for library buildings were received by him from all parts of the English-speaking world. When he arrived at New York last month from Europe he found awaiting him applications for 550 additional buildings. To-day he has on hand 325 new applications, making in all under consideration now more than 800, "the great majority of which," he said, "will no doubt be given."

Referring to the concentration of his mind upon the library business, Mr. Carnegie said he had been a concentrator all his life.

"I have seldom or never known," he con "I have seldom or never known," he continued, "a great success made by a jack of all trades, the board member in twenty companies, the controller of none. I am in the library manufacturing business and beg to be allowed to concentrate my time upon it until it is filled. This is not charity; this is not philanthropy; it is the people helping themselves by taxing themselves."

After expressing the helief in the good motives of people who gave for charity, he said that most of it was "a merf pruning of the branches of the upas tree. We must get to the roots of the poverty, the misery and the crime, which still darken human society, but which, let us gratefully remember, become less and less under the great law of evolution."

Upon the conclusion of the dedication ceremonies the library was thrown open to the public and thousands of people passed through it during the afternoon and evening.

WILL GIVE $350,000 MORE Carnegie Would Establish Branch Libraries in Washington.

Washington, Jun. 7.—Mr. Andrew Carnegle, after the dedication of the Washington Public Library, to-day said that he was so well pleased with the new library and the use of his gift of $350,000 and the provision for the support of the library, that he would donate another $350,000 for the erection of branch libraries on the same condition as the original gift, namely, that the city provide the sites and arrange for the support of the libraries.

FARMER APPLIES THE LASH TO RAIDER OF HENROOST.

Bended Kneen That He Will Quit Raiding Hen Roosts.

James Cheesen, a farmer, living between Alton and East Alton, administered a whipping to a chicken thief about midnight on Tuesday, and made the thief promise, on his knees, that he would never attempt another raid on a henroost.

The thief was discovered by Peter Hartman, a neighbor of Chessen's. Hartman was returning from Alton, and as he passed the Chessen place he noticed a man waiking around the barn. Then he heard the squawks of chickens.

Accompanied by his young son and daughter, Hartman went over to the Chessen place, and there found the man up a tree, across the road from the house. He had a sack full of chickens, which he had taken from the roost in the tree.

Chessen heard the noise almost at the same time, and arrived on the scene a few moments later. They made the fellow come down. He said his name was J. H. Cook of Alton.

Hartman held the thief while Chessen

Alton.

Hartman held the thief while Chessen questioned him closely. Chessen then picked up a harness strap near by and administered a severe lashing to the culprit. After he had finished, the thief was made to promise, on his knees, that he would never attempt to raid another roost. He was then released. released.

Chessen told his friends in Alton yesterday that the night was too cold to bring the fellow to Alton, and that the best way out of the difficulty was to give him a whip-

ATTEMPT TO ROB RESIDENCE IN DAYLIGHT IS FRUSTRATED.

Daughter of Charles Mana Discovery Marauder Trying to Force the Front Door.

Thinking that the members of the family of Charles Mann, a butcher and grocer at Twelfth street and Rock road. East St. Louis, were out, a burglar made a bold attempt at noon yesterbay to enter the living apartiments over the store. When discovered by Jennie, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mann, the burglar took to his heels. He escaped before the alarm could be given.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann and their family were eating dinner when their attention was attracted to a noise made by some one who was trying the lock on the door, which leads to their apartments. This door is downstairs and fronts on the Rock road. No thought of a burglar entered the minds of the family, but Miss Jennie was told to go to the front room window to see who was there. As she raised the window she saw a man trying the lock and she asked him what he wanted. He turned and ran down the road. The girl called her father, but by this time the man got away. Mr. Mann only caught a fleeting gimpse of him. The fellow was tall and slender and wore a derby hat, a light overcoat and a dark pair of trousers. His description tailes somewhat with that of the fake deputy assessor who has been robbing people in East St. Louis.

uit to Set Aside Deed Made by Hin to His Father and to Recover Interest in Ranch.

Another chapter in the famous Cheney will case of Jerseyville has been enacted in the Christian County Circuit Coort at Taylovville. Ill., where Doctor A. M. Cheney of Jerseyville, son of Judge Prentiss D. Cheney, has filed a suit in chancery to set aside the deed made by him to his father in 1892, and also to recover a three-fifths interest in the Cheney ranch in Christian County, consisting of 3500 acres.

Doctor Cheney also sues to have the deei set aside; to have the land apportioned; to have the portion of the ranch belonging to his father set aside to Senator T. S. Caupman of Jerseyville, as the executor of the will; and also for an accounting of the rents and the profits in the time the ranch has been under supervision of the executor. The suit is filed in the name of Thomas F. Ferns of Jerseyville, who was several months ago appointed conservator of Doctor Cheney by Judge A. M. Slaten of the Jersey County Court.

Doctor A. M. Cheney of Jerseyville was the only child of Judge Frentiss D. Chrney, who deel leaving an estate valued at nearly half a million dollars. In the will Senator T. S. Chapman of Jerseyville was named executor. According to the provisions of the will the son was to come into possession of but part of the estate at a time, and of this part only upon condition that he should abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages, tobacco and narcotics, A number of other minor provisions were also added.

The will provided that in case the son and heir should not conform to the provisions of the will, the entire estate, after a certain period, should be turned into an educational fund to be used for the education of the residents of Jersey and Christian counties.

Doctor Cheney the son, contested the will, alleging that a major portion of the property did not belong to his father, but that it had come down from Judge Cheney's father-inlaw. ISUMMARY OF ST. LOUIS MARKETS.

Weather and threatened manipulation by Chicago traders were almost the only factors in the local grain market yesterday. The sudden change of temperature in most sections of the spring and winter wheat belts had an immediate effect in strengthening values. From many points in the North and West came reports that the storm had amounted to a blizzard and that the movement to market would be seriously interfered with. Receipts here and at other primary points were light and the European and cash demand continued good. Early in the session there were private-wire advices that the Armour crowd was preparing to start a bull campaign in May wheat. This increased the desire to buy, and the feeling at the close was decidedly strong.

Corn was sustained by the excellent cash demand caused by the change in weather conditions. Though there was little outside speculative interest, local professionals and scalpers were active enough to keep prices a little better than steady.

May wheat opened 1-16c up and closed \( \frac{1}{2} \text{Re} \text{up}. \)

May corn opened unchanged and closed \( \frac{1}{2} \text{c up}. \)

May oats closed \( \frac{1}{2} \text{c up}. \)

Receipts of produce were good and values were generally steady to a trifle easier.

Local securities had scattering support. Third National Bank was the bull card. Practions closed steady. Yesterday's bank clearings were $9,040,311, balances $1,045,642. Discount rates were steady between 5 and 6 per cent.

Spot cotton was quiet and unchanged in the local market.

GRAIN PRICES ADVANCE ON BLIZZARD WEATHER.

BULL CAMPAIGN IN WHEAT IS ON.

Receipts Are Light and There Is an Excellent Cash Demand for All Grains.

Colder weather with blizzards reported in many sections of the North and West caused an advance in the prices of all grains in yesterday's local market. Though interest was diverted to some extent by the annual election of officers of the Merchants' Exchange, transactions were of fair chants' Exchange, transactions were of fair volume. Reports that Armour was preparing to engineer a built movement in May wheat had considerable effect here. Receipts were moderate and advice from the Northwest indicated that the movement to market would be seriously interfered with by the prevailing bilgzard.

May wheat opened 1-16c up and sold at:

HOME FOR DRUNKARDS' WIVES.

in Kansas City, Kas. REPUBLIC SPECIAL. REPUBLIC SPECIAL,
Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the temperance reformer, to-day closed negotiations for a large residence atKansas City, Kas., to be used as a home for drunkards' wives. The price paid was $7.500, and it is understood that Mrs. Nation will spend several thousand dollars in improving the prope ty, which will be turned over to her within three months. The money to establish the home was raised by Mrs. Nation on her recent trip East.
